

Instructions for using the Downloadable discography

Part one covers all official releases from D for Desire to Return to Eden Volume One

Part two covers less official releases including Promo Videos, compilation CD's, Books, Fan Publications, Tour Programmes etc.

It has been split into two parts for many reasons, mainly due to the fact that Part one should need little updating in the future, whereas Part two will be updated fairly regularly as new discoveries are made.

It is designed to print Landscape on A4 paper, the two outer black lines being cut lines. (which is why it may look odd when viewed on screen)

It could of course been designed to appear book like on screen, but this can be a real nightmare to print successfully, and would involve a lot more waste when reprinting and updating. As it is when updates are made it should simply be a matter of removing the relevant pages and replacing with updated ones. (For this reason page numbers have also been ommitted.)

When cut accurately it will fit in the pages of an A5 Display Book. Rexel make an excellent A5 Display book with room for expansion and semi-rigid covers (Presentation Display Book no. 17435 available from most good stationers)

Although it prints well at 600 DPI on a monochrome Laser Printer, it is designed primarily to be printed on decent Inkjet paper at a resolution of approx 720DPI. I would strongly recommend using paper around the 120gsm range, as this makes the pages more durable when put in the display book and also helps to prevent images showing through from the previous page

Whilst the first section can be considered to be fairly comprehensive, even now new 'old' releases / formats are being discovered, and both parts should be considered as work in progress

A cheaper alternative to the above display book would be to print both parts and trim off the right hand excess, using the left hand margin as an area for stapling.

The reason for the strange margins is to allow for the fact that some printers cannot print as close to the edge of the paper as others.....
